SPEAKER: DANIEL RITCHIE

We always focus on the things that we can't do, but what if I told you that "I can't" is just an excuse to quit? By using the back drop of my life of learning to make my feet do what was meant for hands, I push you toward a life that doesn't make excuses. I'll show there is a way to keep going, problem solve and recruit teammates to help you along the way.

Daniel was born without arms but God is being glorified in Daniel's difference and has given him a thriving life. He has adapted to a world made for people with arms by using his feet to do everything others do with their hands. From writing, eating and driving all the way to hunting and fishing - "I can't" is not in his vocabulary.

With over 23 years of speaking experience, Daniel delivers a powerful message of hope and strength to diverse audiences, connecting through motivational communication in various settings including churches, schools, conferences, universities, corporations, and sports teams.

He's authored two books, "My Affliction For His Glory" and "Endure," and contributed to outlets like Fox News, The Gospel Coalition, and Focus on the Family. Daniel has appeared on national TV shows such as The Story with Martha MacCallum and The 700 Club. Outside of work, he cherishes family time with his wife Heather and their two children, enjoys pizza nights, travel, outdoor activities, football, and the beach.
